The News.

The telegram published by us this morning is encouraging, though far from definite. Hooker's army is at last in motion—has crossed the Rappahannock, and, as it would seem, is advancing upon Fredericksburg from the south or south east, in force. By a glance at the map it will be perceived that the position of the Union army endangers the rebel communications with Richmond. Lee has three courses open to him: First, to give battle to Hooker; second, to abandon Fredericksburg and make a break for Washington, leaving the Union army in his rear, and third, to skedaddle Richmondwards. If he gives battle a defeat would be fatal to him, and open the road to Richmond for Hooker. Against the success of the second course Hooker has probably made due provision before placing an enemy between himself and our capital. It is probable, therefore, that the next news that comes over the wires will be of the evacuation of Fredericksburg, and of a grand skedaddle of the rebel army toward Richmond. It is true that the portion of the dispatch dated at Philadelphia May 1st, speaks of a battle as an accomplished fact. We are inclined to believe, however, that the "battle" referred to is the same as that mentioned in the dispatches from New York and Chicago, namely the skirmishing at the fords of the Rappahannock, and not a decisive engagement between the two armies. If Lee skedaddles from Fredericksburg, he will probably make a stand and give battle in the vicinity of the York river, where he can keep his rear open for a retreat in case of a defeat.

To-morrow we shall probably be able to inform our readers more definitely as to what has occurred; and if we are obliged to wait a few days for tidings of a general engagement, we believe that "Fighting Joe" will, in the end, send us news of a victory, which will gladden all true hearts and discompose and dishearten the copperheads.

Synopsis of the Report of the Committee on the Conduct of the War.

The full report of the Committee on the Conduct of the War occupies sixty four closely printed pages. The principal part of the testimony relates to the Army of the Potomac. The report shows that in December, 1861, exclusive of the command of Gen Dix at Baltimore, the Potomac Army numbered 158 000 well armed, disciplined and equipped. The strength of the enemy was variously estimated at from 70,000 to 210,000 at that time, and their works were exceedingly formidable, but subsequent events proved their force less than 100,000 and the strength of their fortifications greatly overestimated. At the time it was considered unadvisable to attack the enemy in front, also, it would be necessary to leave from 50,000 to 80,000 in front of Washington for its defense, thereby leaving 150,000 men for service elsewhere. The Committee avers that adequate provision was never made to properly man the fortifications in front of Washington.

In relation to the Blockade of the Potomac, the Committee states it was proposed to take possession of Mathias Point in June, 1861, and again in August, but nothing was done. In October another plan was adopted to take it—the Potomac flotilla to act conjointly with a detachment of troops, but the troops were not sent as agreed, and the plan was not tried. Soon after the Potomac flotilla left on the Port Royal expedition, when the river was almost immediately closed by the rebel batteries, until the rebels voluntarily left.

On the 19th of January, 1862, the President, as Commander-in-Chief, issued orders for a general movement of all the army of the United States, one of the results of which was the capture of Forts Henry and Donelson. On the 31st of January the President ordered all the disposable force of the Army of the Potomac, after providing for the safety of Washington, to seize a point on the railroad south west of Manassas and the expedition to move before the 22d of February. This plan was objected to as dividing our army by too great a distance to enable the two portions to support each other. The commanding General recommended instead a movement by way of the Rappahannock or Fortress Monroe. To this proposition the President propounded certain questions as to its practicabilities and advantages, and finally a movement by way of Annapolis and the Rappahannock was agreed upon, but the rebels evacuated their position at Manassas, retreating to the Rappahannock, thus rendering the plan futile. On the 13th of March a council of Generals decided on a campaign by the way of York and James rivers, which the President sanctioned, directing that enough force be left to hold Manassas and leave Washington secure. General McDowell was assigned the advance but transportation not being adequate his division was detained until the last, and subsequently retained for the defense of Washington. Previous to leaving the commanding General addressed a communication to the Adjutant General, showing he left 54,456 at different points, at Warrenton, Manassas, Shenandoah and on the Lower Potomac, with 18,000 for garrisons and in front of Washington. The next day Gen Wadsworth stated his force for the defense of Washington was inadequate, and the subject was referred to Gen Hitchcock, who reported [illegible] the same conclusion, which coincided with his opinion that the requirements of the President that enough force be left to secure the safety of Washington had not been fully complied with. The President next day ordered McDowell's corps to remain. This brings the Committee's report to the Peninsular campaign. After landing near Fort Monroe, the army moved towards Yorktown on the 4th of April, appearing before the rebel works on the 5th. The Committee say the testimony proves that the rebels had from 10,000 to 15,000 men at Yorktown then, and it is now evident that our forces could then have pierced the rebel lines, cutting off reinforcements, but a siege was determined on contrary to the wishes of the President. The Committee rehearse facts relative to the evacuation of Yorktown and the battle of Williamsburg, and say [illegible] of the Generals testified that after the latter battle, if the enemy had been followed, our forces could have reached Richmond almost without firing a gun, but the General Commanding states the bad roads made pursuit impossible. It was decided to send McDowell via Fredericksburg to reinforce the Army of the Potomac, but the operations of Jackson in the Shenandoah valley prevented his being sent. The Committee give details of the battles of Seven Pines and Fair Oaks, in which it is stated that Hooker made reconnoissance to within four miles of Richmond. Certain officers testify that the army then could have marched right into Richmond. The Committee then continues relative to the seven days battles, giving a number of telegrams which passed between General McClellan and the President, the former telegraphing on the 27th of June that the Government had not sustained his army.

On the night of the 25th of July Generals Halleck and Burnside visited Harrison's Landing, soon after it was decided to withdraw the army from there, which was done to reinforce Pope. The Committee devotes many pages to telegrams and extracts of evidence relative to Pope's defeat and then goes on to the campaign in Maryland, which is also mainly composed of extracts from letters of McClellan and Halleck and telegrams in relation to Antietam. McClellan testifies that after the battle he found our loss had been great and the command much disorganized, and did not renew the attack that day, but arranged to attack the day after, when the enemy abandoned his position. He says "I think, taking into consideration what the troops have gone through, we got as much out of them in the Antietam campaign as human endurance would bear." Several letters and dispatches are given that passed between the President, McClellan and Halleck—the former urging McClellan to move on the enemy from his position near Harper's Ferry. McClellan shows conclusively, from his dispatches, that his cavalry was in poor condition in October, but moved on the 26th, and continued until the 5th of November, when he received an order from Halleck deposing him from his command.

The campaign of Burnside is then rehearsed. The testimony makes it appear that at Fredericksburg the attack by Franklin was made by Meade's Division, which pierced the line of the enemy, but were driven back. Several witnesses testified that had the attack been renewed by the whole of Franklin's command it would have been successful. It appears that Gens Newton and Corcoran, in an interview with the President, intimated that the army lacked confidence in Burnside, which led the President to send a dispatch to Burnside, the effect of which was to stop an expedition against the enemy then started. Subsequently Burnside visited Washington and returned, shortly after which he planned a second attack on Fredericksburg, which was thwarted by a storm and in consequence of certain officers expressing dissatisfaction in the presence of inferior officers.

Burnside had orders written dismissing some officers, relieving others from duty and sentencing deserters to be shot. The President refused to sanction the orders, and Burnside offered his resignation, which was not accepted, and he was relieved by the President from the command. The report recapitulates what has been done, reviews financial and other affairs of the rebels. That Committee say the reaction which followed the recent slight manifestation of a willingness on the part of a few secession sympathizers to offer terms of compromise must convince them that they have no allies on whom they can rely, and that the present condition of Europe must forever crush any delusive hopes they might have entertained of intervention to accomplish what they know they never can obtain unaided.

The Committee say we must obtain uninterrupted control of the Mississippi; we must reach those great railroad arteries, the one bordering the Atlantic, the other stretching through the valleys of Virginia and Tennessee to the West and South; we must, as soon as possible, take the few remaining fortified seaports the rebels possess, then we shall virtually disarm the rebellion, cut off from all external sources of supplies and destroy their means of intercommunication, by which alone they have been able to meet us in force, where we have appeared, and by which alone they have been able to supply their armies. We must destroy their armies, and to do this we must concentrate and not scatter our forces. It is better to operate successfully against one stronghold or one army than to attempt three and fail.

The indications now clearly are that both in the East and West the campaign of 1863 will give us brilliant achievements and decisive victories. Our Generals now in the field have full confidence of the soldiers and people, and the armies will go forth knowing that their ranks are to be made full, that every day that passes will add to and not diminish their strength.

In conclusion, the Committee say all men who hold high positions in the army and navy and have rendered valuable services to the country, with whom they have held intercourse, unite in the opinion that fighting and only fighting can end the rebellion; that every traitor in the land must and shall be made to acknowledge and yield absolute, unqualified and unconditional obedience to the Constitution and laws; and your Committee believe this to be the sentiment, not only of the army and navy, but of every man in the country, traitors and cowards alone excepted.

Dates to May 2d.

SALEM, May 7—10 A. M.

CHICAGO, May 2.—By a letter from Washington, April [illegible] it appears from reliable information [illegible] persons arriving from the Rappahannock, some important movement took place yesterday. The forces crossed at Kelly's Ford. [illegible] Pontoon bridges were laid two or three miles below Fredericksburg, and we held possession of them last night. The enemy formed a line of battle and planted batteries on the heights within our reach. They also fired a few shots [illegible]. In crossing we lost [illegible] men killed or wounded. Our men crossed first in boats, and drove the enemy out of their rifle pits, killing and wounding many. They took 100 prisoners, including several officers. These prisoners arrived at Washington and were sent to the Old Capitol prison.

Another informant says our left, 30,000 strong, crossed four miles below Fredericksburg and below where Franklin crossed previous to the first battle at Fredericksburg. They fought twelve hours and drove the enemy [illegible] out of their rifle pits and [illegible] until reinforcements came. The second brigade of the first division, first corps, suffered more than any other in the fight. Our forces captured between 300 and 400 prisoners. Many of these prisoners voluntarily came over in small squads, having thrown away their arms and begged for food. Other rebels however say they have plenty to eat. Our right wing crossed at Kelly's Ford. Stoneman's cavalry are reported to be somewhere near Fredericksburg. The transmission of the above by telegraph from Washington was interdicted by the Government.

MURFREESBORO, May 1st.—Deserters from Stoneman's regiment this morning report that Breckinridge had advanced to Birch Grove and Horner's Gap on Manchester Pike.

CINCINNATI, May 2d.—Rosecrans received dispatches last evening reporting five thousand of his army corps had crossed the Cumberland below Somerset, on Saturday. They had several fights with the rebels at Monticello. They captured the place and are occupying it now. The loss is not stated.

NASHVILLE, May 1st.—A cavalry expedition under command of Col Campbell made a dash on a rebel camp this morning. The enemy were surprised, 14 killed and 30 wounded—three rebel Colonels, 40 prisoners taken, also several horses captured. Federal loss not heavy.

NEW YORK, May 2d.—The Tribune, in addition to what was telegraphed yesterday, says Thursday morning the scene changed.

Movements down the river.—Wednesday night, the third army corps, which was at the four mile bridge, marched up the river again and joined the second at Banks' Ford early Thursday. The first followed and halted at the same place. There were three corps across the Rappahannock marching straight on Fredericksburg via Chancellorsville, a small village three miles distant. That place and point at Banks' Ford with the road to United States Ford opens communications with our advancing columns; also six corps were in position to move directly on the rebels. Communications with seven corps still exist. They are beginning to cross below and assail the other flank of the enemy. It is believed by many that the rebels will evacuate Fredericksburg and fall back towards Richmond. Telegrams to that effect were received yesterday, but were based on the presumed necessity of retreating, perhaps as much as any information.

MURFREESBORO, May 1st.—A dispatch in the Mobile Advertiser from Brownsville, Georgia, dated April 21st, says the Federals captured the Mayhew and Mobile road 13 miles from Columbus, Mississippi. Great excitement has been caused by the Unionists.

NEW YORK, May 2d.—The Herald learns that Col West, out from Fort Magruder, made an infantry and cavalry attack on the enemy at Williamsburg and succeeded in driving the rebels two miles beyond the town. Our pickets are at present stationed there and ordered to maintain the place at all hazards.

The New York Tribune's [illegible] announces that Hooker's army crossed the Rappahannock at four places. The enemy were confounded and we captured their pickets, reserves &c. Five hundred prisoners were taken.

The same account states that on April 27th the 11th, 12th and 13th army corps moved to Kelly's Ford and reached there on the 28th. A brigade had been quartered at the Ford for the last two weeks. We crossed on pontoons superintended by Gen Howard. No enemy were found but a few pickets. Stoneman's cavalry crossed on the 29th.

Reynolds' 1st army corps constructed a bridge in the face of the enemy's rifle pits and effected a crossing; the resistance was stubborn but short. Our artillery force was too strong for the enemy, who fled, leaving 67 prisoners from the 13th Georgia and 17th Louisiana regiments. They report that Jackson is commanding the right wing. Couch's 2d corps was in the rear of Banks' Ford with full facility for crossing.

The corps which crossed at Kelly's Ford is moving towards Chancellorville, south of Fredericksburg. There is great excitement to day in consequence of reports from Morgantown that the rebels defeated Col Mulligan at Fairmount and were returning to Morgantown in force, having received reinforcements from Beverly. This information is contained in a letter from Maj Shoemaker to Gen Howe.

A special messenger arrived here last night from Greensborough, five miles from Morgantown, with intelligence that Mulligan had attacked a small force under the rebel leader Jones and was getting the better of him when the enemy was reinforced by a large force under Imboden by the Evansville pike and by Herman on Indian creek, so that Mulligan and his little force was nearly surrounded, and had to retire.

NEW YORK, May 1st.—The steamer Fire [illegible] left to-day with two [illegible]. Money easy. Sterling firmer [illegible], moderate business at 60½. Gold opened firm at [illegible] and closed quiet at [illegible].

LATER.—PHILADELPHIA, May 1st.—We learn that Gen Hooker with 50,000 men had a battle with the rebels beyond the Rappahannock. We have no particulars, but the [illegible] victorious.

NEW YORK, May 1st.—The Tribune has a letter from near Vicksburg which asserts that one of the transports, the Tigress, was sunk passing the rebel batteries on the 23d April. She was hulled by the works. The officers and crew all escaped. The [illegible] got by safe.

The Government has contracted for the transfer of the largest sized cannon from Pittsburgh to the Atlantic seaboard for the armament of the defenses of New York, Boston, Portland and other seaport towns.

Mrs John C. Breckinridge, according to a [illegible] item, has cut up her wedding dress and made a flag, which is to be presented to the Twentieth Tennessee Regiment in her husband's brigade, for distinguished services.

A NEW FASHION BY REBEL LADIES.—The fashion which prevailed so universally last year of trimming bonnets with red, white and red, and sporting ribbons and scarfs combining those colors, has given place to a new one among our secesh ladies. It originated in Baltimore a few weeks ago, and is already as widespread as female disloyalty itself. It consists in changing the form of the bonnets that have been in fashion for a few months past. The high front, which reaches six or eight inches above the forehead, with its elaborate ornamentation of flowers and feathers, is smashed down until the point actually reaches an inch or two over the forehead. The bonnet looks as if a brick had fallen from a house top upon its high peaked front and smashed it down to a level with the wearer's heads. The former fashion was ugly enough, but the latter is hideous. It is not to be taken as an evidence of humility on the part of the wearers, for they carry their heads as high as ever, if not their bonnets. A lady now is not considered as belonging to the secesh persuasion unless she takes her best bonnet to the milliner and has it razeed in order to bring it to the mode.

Prentice says: The persons fiercest for peace appear to have nothing to propose except that the Federal Government should lie quietly down and die. We wish they would quietly set the example.

The Committee for receiving subscriptions are Messrs. A. C. Gibbs, Amory Holbrook, J. H. Mitchell and R. J. Ladd. All persons subscribing ten dollars or more are entitled to have their names incorporated in the Bill [illegible] by the California Legislature protecting the survey, and upon full organization they will be credited upon the books of the company at the rate of one share for every ten dollars paid in, and entitled to one vote for every such share of stock, without further [illegible]. [illegible] LECTURE.—Rev. Thomas Condon will deliver a lecture on the Geology of Western Oregon, this evening, commencing at half past seven, in the M. E. Church. A [illegible] of fossil specimens will be used to illustrate the subject. Admission 50 cents; [illegible] and pupils of the schools free.

THEATRE.—There was no performance at the Theatre last night, so we are informed. To-night Mr. G. B. Waldron takes a benefit.—For further particulars see advertisement.

[illegible] UP.—The river is still slowly rising. [illegible] portion of the principal whaves [illegible] flooded. Hopes are entertained, [illegible], that the flood will not prove so disastrous as that of last year.

As I am an advocate of justice, and believe in exposing all wrong doers, and knowing that your columns are open to that, I would like to furnish them with an item bearing upon them.

On May-day morning the scholars of a private school in this city, thirty in number, accompanied by their teachers, and several parents, went on a picnic excursion to a little grove on a piece of open, unoccupied land below the city, and after spending a few hours in healthful exercise and amusements, and the teachers had returned home, and the children [illegible] together to sing before returning home, a man by the name of Hartness, who worked in a brickyard near by, came [illegible] they were, and in a rough profane manner ordered them to leave the premises, saying that they had frightened off some [illegible] that ought to be feeding there.

The children all being young, were very much frightened, and flew in all directions, until the teacher who was a short distance off, came to the place, and attempted to remonstrate with the man, but all to no purpose.—The teacher then endeavored to assemble the [illegible] children to sing, and promised to [illegible], but this was not allowed, and on his [illegible] the man of ungentlemanly conduct, was struck a severe blow in the face, and on [illegible] that his orders were not hastily obeyed, he started off and procured a pistol which he [illegible], threatening to shoot any who [illegible] hurry off, or who ever came on the [illegible] again.

Many of the little ones, being much frightened, hurried off home on the run screaming [illegible], alone and unprotected, and as the [illegible] was following with a few of the older [illegible] passing along the road through the [illegible] was assailed again by the man, [illegible] threatened with shooting if he attempted to pass through the yard, and was obliged to [illegible] it, and leave the children to take [illegible] themselves.

[illegible] was made before the Recorder, [illegible] man was summoned to appear, which [illegible] the next day, and without summoning [illegible] or witnesses, he was fined only [illegible] costs and dismissed. But the worst [illegible] it has is this. If the teacher had made resistance, the probability is that he or the scholars, would have been shot. So we [illegible] that a man's life nowadays is valued at ten dollars. B.

It is stated that Professor Nutting, a musician formerly of New Albany, Indiana, who [illegible] in the South at the opening of the rebellion enlisted as a musician in the rebel [illegible], leaving his wife and several children [illegible] for by the rebels who remained at [illegible]. The band with which he was connected was soon disbanded, and its members [illegible] the ranks. His family was not cared for, however, and his wife, who has reached her parents' house in Michigan, states that two of her children actually died of starvation at [illegible], Mississippi.

The New York Evening Post calculates that in the next Congress the Administration will have a clear working majority in the House, while the Senate will stand, republicans 29, [illegible] 9, Unionists (including such men as Sprague, of Rhode Island, Hicks, of Maryland and Conness of California) 9. Thus the [illegible] named the Administration can have no more sterling supporters.

The State of Delaware has furnished to the General Government, since the breaking out of the rebellion, five regiments of infantry, one battery, one squadron of cavalry, and two regiments of home guards, besides which her [illegible] have supported the families of the vol-

DR. BAKER'S
PAIN PANACEA.

Is composed entirely of healing gums, and vegetable oils and herbs. It is perfectly safe for the most delicate to use. I can most sincerely say that I have never known any, however delicate, to be injured by it in the least. I will continue to ask the afflicted, who have not used it, to try it for the following diseases: If they are not satisfied with its healing properties, the money will be cheerfully returned by the agent where the medicine is for sale.

If you have pain in the stomach or bowels, try a dose of Pain Panacea internally, bathe externally over the parts affected, and you will at once restore the proper action and relieve the pain.

If you have a Bruise or Wound, bathe it well with the Pain Panacea four times a day. It will relieve the pain, and take out all the poison, and heal the wound in a short time.

If you are suffering from Neuralgia or Rheumatic Pains, apply the Pain Panacea freely, and take a dose of it internally, morning, noon and night; it will not only cure the pain, but will remove the cause of the disease.

If you have the Dyspepsia, and your food distresses your stomach after eating, take a dose of Pain Panacea after each meal.

If you have a Cankered or Sore Mouth or Throat, apply the Pain Panacea, to the affected parts, and gargle the mouth or throat three or four times a day.

If you have the Diarrhœa, or a relaxed state of the bowels, take a dose of Pain Panacea and they will soon be restored. If you have a painful swelling, bathe the parts freely, and you will soon relieve pain, and the swelling will be reduced.

If you have a severe tooth-ache, apply the Pain Panacea on a piece of cotton and bathe the gum at the same time; it will stop the pain instantly.

If you have a pain in the Breast, Side, Back or Kidneys, bathe parts affected morning and night; at the same time take a dose of the Panacea internally.

If a Mother has a caked breast, apply the Panacea as hot as it can be borne.

If you feel chilly or cold, as though you were going to have a fever, take a dose of Panacea.

If you have a wound, cut, or galls upon your horse, apply the Pain Panacea; it will take out all the inflammation and heal the sore in a short tim

The Highest Proof of Loyalty.—The Murfreesboro correspondent of the Cincinnati Gazette, relates the following touching incident:

The sentiments and bearings of the negroes hereabouts are most extraordinary. They acquiesce in the decision of the President not to grant them their freedom as a matter of loyalty. Contrary to expectation, the slaves of Tennessee manifest not the least uneasiness, disquiet or disobedience at being excepted from the operation of that benign policy which is to make millions of their brethren free. Yesterday I was conversing with several slaves, and endeavored to explain to them that the President had refrained from proclaiming freedom to their class in Tennessee, Kentucky, etc., because there were so many good Union people in those States who did not wish to have their slaves liberated, and because it was thought that the cause of the Union would be triumphant in those States by allowing things to continue as they were. "O, well," said a fine looking young man, "I'se willin' to agree to anything Massa Linkum thinks right." "Yes," added a grey haired African, "if dey makes all dose oder culled folks free I can stand it to be a slave a few years longer." As he said this he looked upward, as if to catch a glimpse of a country where he knew all bondage would end. Poor degraded slaves! Unlettered, untaught, they indeed were. And yet I could not refrain from thinking that the two who had spoken, the young man and the old, were imbued with a devoted loyalty and Christian spirit seldom found even amongst the best and most patriotic of us all. The young man was willing to sacrifice forever his hopes of personal freedom in obedience to the President—the old man would submit to spend the remainder of his days in slavery for the sake of his brethren.

Hibernation of the Rebel Army at Fredericksburg.—A correspondent of the Fayetteville (N. C.) Observer, writing from Fredericksburg, thus tells how the rebel army keeps warm:

The health of the army is remarkably good. There are but few tents, but this army is beginning to regard them as a nuisance. Much soldiering has made them very sharp, and given them a full knowledge of the law of self preservation, and they seem to have the same instinct as a beaver, for their operations very much resemble the habits of that animal. Brigades move about near thick woods to get supplies of fuel and for benefit to health. When the troops stop to camp, you see them scatter about and become very busy, and in the course of an hour or two the whole brigade has disappeared. You can hear voices and noises, and see moving things, and you almost think it a vision or a haunted place, but after some painful suspense you are enabled to understand this sudden and strange "transmogrification." The drum beat summons the men to duty or inspection, and, all at once, from holes, clay roots and hollow trees all around, you can see hundreds of heads protruding, and then the shoulders and finally the whole body, and then the entire brigade appears before you as it was a few hours ago. The soldiers have dug out holes, caves and cellars, over which is a roof of close brush covered with a thick coating of dirt to turn rain and weather, while the tenement below is warmed by a snug and well filled fireplace cut in the solid earth on the side, and such are the winter quarters of Lee's army.

Succinctly Stated.—The matter of "arbitrary arrests" and kindred questions, is admirably stated by Mr. Welsh, of Belmont county, in a speech delivered in the Ohio Senate, recently. He said:

"While war is raging, many of our rights held sacred by the Constitution, rights which cannot be violated by any acts of Congress, may and must be suspended and held in abeyance. If this were not so, the Government might itself be destroyed; the army and navy sacrificed, and one part of the Constitution would nullify the rest.

"If freedom of speech cannot be suppressed, spies cannot be caught, imprisoned and hung.

"If freedom of the press cannot be interfered with, all our military plans may be betrayed to the enemy.

"If no man be deprived of life without trial by jury, a soldier cannot slay the enemy in battle.

"If enemy's property cannot be taken without 'due process of law,' how can the soldier disarm the foe and seize his weapons?

"If no person can be arrested, sentenced, and shot, without trial by jury, in the county or State where his crime is alleged to have been committed, how can a deserter be shot, or a spy hung, or an enemy be taken prisoner?"

Archbishop Hughes' Silver Plate.—A few days ago one of the New York papers contained the following item:

Archbishop Hughes, of New York, when called on by the assessor for his return of silver plate liable to tax under the United States revenue law, rendered 12,000 ounces, with the remark: "You need not exempt me forty ounces; the country requires all the tax."

The Archbishop pronounces the statement to be incorrect, and says the amount of silver plate in his possession is only 970 ounces, much of which consists of personal and complimentary donations. Neither did he request that the forty ounces exempted by law should be taxed. He adds that the only thing that could give a coloring to this unfounded exaggeration is, that in the office of the assessor, having been complimented by the latter for promptness, he (the Archbishop) remarked that since the unfortunate circumstances of our country rendered it necessary that the Government should be supported, he thought it wisest that each citizen should pay his share of taxation with as much promptitude and cheerfulness as patriotism could inspire.

Judge Pettigru of South Carolina.—A correspondent of the Evening Post relates the subjoined anecdote of the late Judge James L. Pettigru of South Carolina, the incorruptible patriot who boldly and persistently withstood the nullification heresy in Gen. Jackson's time, and fearlessly maintained his Union sentiments down to the day of his death. A few weeks before his death, which, as all know, occurred very recently, he was met in the street by a person who accosted him, saying:

"Will you be so kind as to direct me to the lunatic asylum?"

"Certainly," answered Mr. Pettigru, "there it is," pointing to the east, "and there," turning and pointing to the south, "and there," pointing to the west, "and there again," pointing to the north. "You cannot possibly go amiss." When asked an explanation of this singular direction, he said, "The whole State is a lunatic asylum, and the people are all lunatics."

The Dagmar Cross, to be worn henceforth by the Princess Alexandra, contains a piece of silk taken from the grave of King Canute. The ornament is in other respects of a most costly description, as the necklace contains two thousand brilliants and a hundred and eighteen pearls, and the cross attached to it is alleged to contain a fragment of the true Cross.

INDUCED by the extensive sale and universal popularity of Hoofland's German Bitters, (purely vegetable,) hosts of ignorant Quacks and unscrupulous adventurers have opened upon suffering humanity the flood-gates of Nostrums in the shape of poor Whisky, vilely compounded with injurious drugs and christened Tonics, Stomachics and Bitters.

Beware of the innumerable array of Alcoholic preparations in plethoric bottles and big bellied kegs, under the modest appellation of Bitters, which instead of curing, only aggravate disease, and leave the disappointed sufferer in despair.

Hoofland's German Bitters!

Are not a new and untried article, but have stood the test of fifteen years trial by the American public; and their reputation and sale are not rivalled by any similar preparation.

The proprietors have thousands of letters from the most eminent

CLERGYMEN,
LAWYERS,
PHYSICIANS
CITIZENS,

Testifying of their own personal knowledge, to the beneficial effects and medical virtues of these Bitters.

Do you want something to strengthen you?
Do you want a good appetite?
Do you want to build up your constitution?
Do you want to feel well?
Do you want to get rid of nervousness?
Do you want energy?
Do you want to sleep well?
Do you want a brisk and vigorous feeling?

If you do, use HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS.

From Rev. J. Newton Brown, D. D., Editor of the Encyclopedia of Religious Knowledge.

Although not disposed to favor or recommend Patent Medicines in general, through distrust of their ingredients and effects, I yet know of no sufficient reasons why a man may not testify to the benefits he believes himself to have received from any simple preparation, in the hope that he may thus contribute to the benefit of others.

I do this the more readily in regard to Hoofland's German Bitters prepared by Dr. C. M. Jackson, of this city, because I was prejudiced against them for many years, under the impression that they were chiefly an alcoholic mixture. I am indebted to my friend Robert Shoemaker, Esq., for the removal of this prejudice by proper tests, and for encouragement to try them, when suffering from great and long continued debility. The use of three bottles of these Bitters, at the beginning of the present year, was followed by evident relief, and restoration to a degree of bodily and mental vigor which I had not felt for six months before, and had almost despaired of regaining. I, therefore, thank God and my friend for directing me to the use of them.

J. NEWTON BROWN.

PHILADELPHIA, June 23, 1861.

PARTICULAR NOTICE.

There are many preparations sold under the name of Bitters, put up in quart bottles, compounded of the cheapest whiskey or common rum, costing from 20 to 40 cents per gallon, the taste disguised by Anise or Coriander Seed.

This class of Bitters has caused, and will continue to cause, as long as they can be sold, hundreds to die the death of the drunkard. By their use the system is kept continually under the influence of Alcoholic Stimulants of the worst kind, the desire for Liquor is created and kept up, and the result is all the horrors attendant upon a drunkard's life and death.

For those who desire and will have a Liquor Bitters, we publish the following receipt: Get One Bottle Hoofland's German Bitters and mix with Three Quarts of Good Brandy or Whiskey, and the result will be a preparation that will far excel in medicinal virtues and true excellence any of the numerous Liquor Bitters in the market, and will cost much less. You will have all the virtues of Hoofland's Bitters in connection with a good article of Liquor, at a much less price than these inferior preparations will cost you.

ATTENTION, SOLDIERS!

AND THE FRIENDS OF SOLDIERS.

We call the attention of all having relations or friends in the army to the fact that "HOOFLAND'S German Bitters" will cure nine tenths of the diseases induced by exposures and privations incident to camp life. In the lists, published almost daily in the newspapers, on the arrival of the sick, it will be noticed that a very large proportion are suffering from debility. Every case of that kind can be readily cured by Hoofland's German Bitters. Diseases resulting from disorders of the digestive organs are speedily removed. We have no hesitation in stating that, if these Bitters were freely used among our soldiers, hundreds of lives might be saved that otherwise will be lost.

We call particular attention to the following remarkable and well authenticated cure of one of the nation's heroes, whose life, to use his own language, "has been saved by the Bitters."

PHILADELPHIA, August 23, 1862.

Messrs. Jones & Evans—Well, gentlemen, your Hoofland's German Bitters has saved my life. There is no mistake in this. It is vouched for by numbers of my comrades, some of whose names are appended, and who were fully cognizant of all the circumstances of my case. I am, and have been for the last four years, a member of Sherman's celebrated battery, and under the immediate command of Captain R. B. Ayres. Through the exposure attendant upon my arduous duties, I was attacked in November last with inflammation of the lungs, and was for seventy two days in the hospital. This was followed by great debility, heightened by an attack of dysentery. I was then removed from the White House, and sent to this city on board the steamer State of Maine, from which I landed on the 28th of June. Since that time I have been about as low as one could be and still retain a spark of vitality. For a week or more I was scarcely able to swallow anything, and if I did force a morsel down, it was immediately thrown up again.

I could not even keep a glass of water on my stomach. Life could not last under these circumstances, and, accordingly, the physicians who had been working faithfully, though unsuccessfully, to rescue me from the grasp of the dread Archer, frankly told me they could do no more for me, and advised me to see a clergyman, and to make such disposition of my limited funds as best suited me. An acquaintance who visited me at the hospital, Mr. Frederick Steinbron, of Sixth below Arch Street, advised me, as a forlorn hope, to try your Bitters, and kindly procured a bottle. From the time I commenced taking them the gloomy shadow of death receded, and I am now, thank God for it, getting better. Though I have taken but two bottles, I have gained ten pounds, and I feel sanguine of being permitted to rejoin my wife and daughter, from whom I have heard nothing, for eighteen months; for, gentlemen, I am a loyal Virginian, from the vicinity of Front Royal. To your invaluable Bitters I owe the certainty of life which has taken the place of vague fears—to your Bitters will I owe the glorious privilege of again clasping to my bosom those who are dearest to me in life.

Very truly yours, ISAAC MALONE.

We fully concur in the truth of the above statement, as we had despaired of seeing our comrade, Mr. Malone, restored to life.
